

GIVING GUIDE

The Giving Guide

2012 Regional Philanthropic Opportunities

While philanthropy is a year-round activity, the holidays are a time when many think about those in need — and about how they can help. This is also the time BusinessWest presents its annual Giving Guide, which is produced to spotlight local nonprofit agencies and the work they do in the community, and to inspire area residents and business owners to discover ways they can help these organizations fulfill their missions. For this special section, we take a look at a unique philanthropic initiative known as the Day of Giving, and also turn the spotlight on several area nonprofits that are improving quality of life for residents in Western Massachusetts.

Every year during Thanksgiving week, Amy Jamrog sends each of her clients a gift. In the past, they have received baked goods, flowers, or other tangible items. But last month, she put 100 cards in the mail with something quite different than anything she had sent before. “Given the events of Hurricane Sandy and the current state of our community, I decided to do something more meaningful this year,” said the Northwestern Mutual wealth-management advisor.

Each card contains a handwritten message and a code that will allow recipients to make a donation to a nonprofit they care about at the website www.valleygives.org on the aptly named Valley Gives Day.

The so-called e-philanthropy event, which will be staged Dec. 12, will last 24 hours and benefit 268 charitable organizations, which range from Wounded Warriors and Friends of the Homeless to Amherst Survival Center, environmental and education groups, those that serve children or the elderly, and more.

“Valley Gives Day provides a perfect opportunity to bring people together in the spirit of generosity to make a difference in our community,” Jamrog said. “I am so excited about this.”

It will also give families a chance to get their children involved in choosing a charity they think is important."

Lora Wondolowski shares the sentiment. She plans to give a similar card to a close friend as part of a wedding present. "It seemed like a perfect fit," said the director of Leadership Pioneer Valley, explaining, "my friend recently moved back to the area and is interested in getting involved with local nonprofits."

Valley Gives Day is being hosted by the Community Foundation of Western Massachusetts in Springfield in cooperation with eight of the area's leading funding organizations. The goal is to raise $1 million online for participating nonprofits while teaching them how to use social media as an effective fundraising tool.

The organizations have been divided into two categories: those with revenues of $500,000 or more and those that fall under that amount, because, in addition to competing for donations, they are also competing for prizes. The top three in each category that raise the most money and the top three with the most donors will each receive grants of $15,000, $10,000 and $5,000, respectively. The nonprofit in 12th place in each category will be given $1,200, and special bonus gifts will be awarded between 11 a.m. and midnight to randomly selected winners.

Kristin Leutz, vice president of philanthropic services for the Community Foundation, said the agency decided to launch the initiative in December because this is a time when people normally make charitable donations.

"People tend to think about others in the community around the holidays," she said, citing a recent survey showing that, last year, 65% of Internet users said they planned to make at least one online gift to a charity.

"Social media is the fastest agent of change, and organizations that use any kind of social media raise nearly 40% more than their peers," she told BusinessWest, adding that studies prove it is cost-effective. It costs less than a penny to raise $1 online, while it takes $1.25 to raise $1 using direct mail.

"Online giving is growing at double-digit percentages each year. The sponsors of Valley Gives recognize this and want to offer a trusted, easy-to-use platform to residents and non-profits," said Katie Zobel, vice president of Philanthropic Services for the Community Foundation.

Marketing Strategies

So far, more than 340 individuals from participating nonprofits have attended two webinars and three live workshops related to social media. The sessions have included how to set up a Facebook page and Twitter account, as well as how to use the venues to raise money.

Bill Miller, executive director of Friends of the Homeless in Springfield, hopes Valley Gives Day will raise awareness about the organization's mission as well as increase donations and support. "We have had a website for several years, but we don't get many online donations; we typically only receive checks in response to mailings," he said.

However, after attending the educational sessions and making some changes to the agency's Facebook page, their 'likes' have increased from 100 to 1,150. "Facebook also allows us to get quick feedback as to whether people are interested in something, which is very helpful," Miller told BusinessWest.

Leadership Pioneer Valley is hoping for similar results. "We haven't done much outreach to individual donors, and this is a great opportunity to jump-start that effort," Wondolowski said.

Leutz said similar endeavors have been very successful. The Minnesota Community Foundation launched a day of giving in 2009 and has continued to host the event each year. In 2011, more than $13.4 million was raised to benefit nonprofits in that state, and in the past three years, GiveMN has helped to raise $46 million.

Similar 24-hour online giving days have been staged in Dallas, Denver, Pittsburgh, and Washington, D.C. "It's a proven model that we have adapted to fit the Pioneer Valley," Leutz said. "In every case, the organizations have raised more than they expected, and each year that amount continues to grow."

The online partner for the event is Razoo, a Washington, D.C.-based firm that has helped to raise millions of dollars for thousands of causes through secure and easy-to-use platforms. And Leutz says a lot of work has gone on behind the scenes.

"We're operating this as a start-up because it is new to the community; we have had to pivot and adjust, but that is what start-ups do," she said. "We are here to support generous individuals and the work done by nonprofits, and Valley Gives Day is an extension of that."

Founding Fathers

The event was spearheaded by attorney Paul Doherty a principal with Doherty, Wallace, Pillsbury, & Murphy in Springfield, and Al Griggs of Northampton. Doherty said he approached Griggs about 18 months ago with the idea of creating a catalyst that would prompt a tide of giving in Western Mass.

Al Griggs, left, and Paul Doherty approached Kristen Leutz 18 months ago with an idea for increasing donations to nonprofits.

He was inspired by the Giving Pledge, a campaign founded in 2010 by Warren Buffett and Bill Gates that encourages billionaires to donate a large portion of their wealth to philanthropic causes. It has been highly successful, and 91 billionaires have signed a pledge to give half of their fortunes to charity. "When I heard about it, I thought it was really awesome," Doherty said.

Griggs was enthusiastic, and they decided to approach officials at the Community Foundation to see if they were interested.

"They have represented philanthropic interests for 20 years and given grants to hundreds of nonprofits," Griggs said of the foundation. "Most giving has been major gifts from wealthy donors, but we both think that everyone is philanthropic. There are many people who donate time as well as money, since there are 2,000 nonprofits in the area and they all have boards of directors."

Griggs and Doherty presented the idea to Leutz and Zobel, who immediately embraced it. "I am very entrepreneurial and I loved the thought of coming up with something new," Leutz said.

But finding an appropriate venue, then creating the fund-raiser, was no easy task. Steps along the way included a luncheon with 20 local philanthropists, a formal feasibility study, and research about successful fund-raising models that would work well in Western Mass.

Over time, the Day of Giving was developed, and Leutz said when organizers went to their investors for support, they knew they had a strong platform.

In fact, the initiative quickly took on a life of its own, as people stepped up to the plate. "Valley Gives has generated a real outpouring of financial support and enthusiastic volunteering," Griggs said.

Partners include the Jewish Federation of Western Mass., the Jewish Endowment Foundation, the Women's Fund of Western Massachusetts, the Beveridge Family Foundation, and the United Way organizations in Hampden, Hampshire, and Franklin counties. There is also a group of more than 25 investors who have made a three-year commitment to the program, and at press time, more than $250,000 had been raised to run the program and fund the prizes.

"It's a major-league event," Doherty said, adding that a bus will visit shopping malls and college campuses on Dec. 12 in hopes of increasing donations.

Gaining Ground

Doherty predicts that some of the participating nonprofits will promote the Day of Giving casually, while others will strive to win top awards. But everyone will gain in some way.

"We hope that people will plan on giving to this cause every year," he said, adding that online donations will soon dwarf traditional methods.

Griggs concurs. "Giving online is easy, people trust it, and this is a way for them to make gifts that are affordable to organizations they care about," he said. "We believe that, if people can donate $10 or more online, they will be delighted to do so." ■◆

WHO WE ARE AND WHAT WE DO

Founded in 2000, Baystate Health Foundation works in support, and for the benefit, of Baystate Health and its affiliated tax-exempt, charitable organizations to raise funds for healthcare-related activities and initiatives within our community. Over the past 12 years, the foundation has enjoyed a journey in growth, where strong leadership, engaged trustees, and dedicated community members have collectively helped us to arrive at a place where the culture of philanthropy at Baystate Health runs deep. The community embraces Baystate Health, a very complex health system serving Western Mass. and beyond, as a charity of choice. As one of the largest employers in our area, serving the second-poorest community in the state, the need for Baystate Health is great, and the level of charity care is unprecedented. Philanthropy dollars are critical to our continued efforts to support quality care to all who find themselves in need. It is the continuous support from our community that enables us to serve our community with quality and compassion every day. As a sophisticated and comprehensive development program, the foundation raises funds through annual mailings, capital campaigns, events, and planned giving. Revenue is used to support education, program development, research, and capital projects throughout the health system with a focus on clinical service lines including oncology, heart and vascular, women's health, emergency services and surgery, as well as Baystate Children's Hospital.

The Campaign for Baystate Medical Center

Four years ago, there was no Davis Family Heart and Vascular Center. There was no new Emergency & Trauma Center. There was no D'Amour Healing Garden. There were no tranquil, private patient rooms overlooking the treetops of Western Massachusetts. There was a hole in the ground, and a terrifyingly deep recession, and a bold dream for a facility so advanced that we called it our hospital of the future. And there was Baystate Medical Center's firm determination to give our community the state-of-the-art treatment environment it deserves.

On behalf of everyone who will receive exemplary care in our new state-of-the-art facilities, we honor over 2,300 community members and leaders who drove The Campaign for Baystate Medical Center with their generosity. Thank you.

MISSION STATEMENT

Clarke provides children who are deaf and hard of hearing with the listening, learning, and spoken-language skills they need to succeed.

WHO WE ARE AND WHAT WE DO

Northampton has been our home since we were founded in 1867 as Clarke School for the Deaf. For more than a century, Clarke operated as a traditional residential school where elementary- and middle-school students lived on campus, typically for many years beginning in elementary school. More recently, Clarke has changed and expanded its programs to take full advantage of the revolutionary advances in hearing technologies. Today, hearing loss can be diagnosed in infancy, and Clarke's programs in combination with technologies such as digital hearing aids and cochlear implants enable even profoundly deaf children to learn to listen, speak, and succeed in their neighborhood schools alongside their hearing peers at ever-younger ages. Our headquarters remain in our historic Northampton home, and we have added early childhood centers and preschools in Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, and Jacksonville, Fla.

PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

- Comprehensive support, education, and training for families of children and youth who are deaf or hard of hearing;
- Early-intervention services for birth-to-3-year-olds and their families, including teleservices (available at our Boston and Northampton locations);
- Preschools in six East Coast locations, including Northampton;
- Highly innovative, nationally recognized elementary-, middle-, and high-school programs located in Northampton's Leeds Elementary school and operated in cooperation with JFK Middle School and Hampshire Regional High School;
- Summer programs and social activities for children and families;
- Extensive educational evaluations and in-school support services for students attending mainstream public schools;

- A wide variety of professional-development trainings and publications for teachers and other professionals who interact with students who are deaf or hard of hearing, including the nation's oldest Teacher of the Deaf master's degree offered in collaboration with Smith College; and

- Our Northampton Hearing Center, offering complete audiological, hearing-aid, and cochlear-implant services for children and adults of all ages.

We welcome visitors and offer tours on a regularly scheduled basis or by appointment. Our professionals are available for speaking engagements on a wide variety of hearing-related topics. For more information or to make an appointment at the Hearing Center, schedule a visit at any of locations, or arrange for a speaker, call (413) 584-3450 or visit clarkeschools.org.

Dakin serves the communities of Franklin, Hampshire, and Hampden counties. Many of the programs, including the Community Spay/Neuter Clinic, also serve the animals and people in Worcester and Berkshire counties as well as Northern Conn.

2012 BUDGET

$3 million

MISSION STATEMENT

Dakin Pioneer Valley Humane Society provides shelter, education, advocacy, and assistance for animals and people in need.

WHO WE ARE AND WHAT WE DO

Our adoption centers in Springfield and Leverett provide a second chance for thousands of dogs, cats, kittens, puppies, rabbits, gerbils, hamsters, ferrets, birds, rats, and guinea pigs every year. About 6,000 animals were given second chances through the Dakin adoption centers in Springfield and Leverett. Our staff makes great matches between people and pets, and also provides resources and advice to keep pets with their original families. The Dakin Community Spay/Neuter Clinic reached a milestone in October 2012. In its third year of operation, the Dakin Community Spay/Neuter Clinic has sterilized 32,000 animals. The low-cost, high-volume clinic has special programs to target animals most at risk of ending up in a shelter — pit bull dogs, feral cats, and the cats of low-income clients. Pet-food aid is often the only thing standing between an animal becoming homeless or staying in the home. More than 45,000 pounds of food was distributed to our neighbors in need. Humane education staff provides positive examples and guidance to improve the treatment of animals by exploring ways we can live with respect for all creatures.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

About 600 volunteers provide a variety of services. They feed animals, raise money, and clean cages. They foster orphaned kittens, enter data, and do laundry. Without them, Dakin could not meet its commitment to the animals and our community. To find out more, visit www.dpvhs.org.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

Dakin receives funding from a variety of sources: individuals, corporations, foundations. Gifts come via bequests, and in memory or in honor of people or pets. Dakin receives no public or government funding.

WHO WE ARE AND WHAT WE DO

"Providing safe, affordable housing is about more than bricks and mortar. It is about helping families and children thrive. It is about revitalizing our neighborhoods. It is about creating a stronger, more vibrant region." — Peter Gagliardi, executive director

HAPHousing is one of the Commonwealth's most active providers of programs and services that strengthen our region by creating affordable housing, promoting collaborative investment in our neighborhoods and working to improve the quality of life for many thousands of low- and middle-income families. Over nearly 40 years, we have learned that providing housing is essential, but not enough. We focus great energy on helping families find and keep safe, affordable homes and obtain the resources and skills they need to become self-sustaining. In the past year, HAPHousing:

- Completed six new single-family homes in a revitalized neighborhood and has 70 new affordable apartments for seniors and families in development;
- Delivered $40,065,990 in rental assistance to 2,342 landlords on behalf of 5,019 tenants, enabling them to afford decent, safe housing;
- Provided more than $1 million in home-modification loans to 39 homeowners to make their homes accessible for family members with disabilities;
- Helped 6,639 people with housing questions and problems through our Housing Consumer Education Center;
- Provided pre-purchase counseling to 364 prospective homebuyers;
- Trained 99 landlords in educational workshops;
- Counseled 637 households facing foreclosure;
- Helped 171 heads of households work toward economic independence through our Family Self-Sufficiency program;
- Helped 433 families avoid becoming homeless;
- Re-housed 180 homeless families into new apartments, helped stabilize 851 formerly homeless families, and provided transitional housing to 48 formerly homeless survivors of domestic violence and teen mothers;
- Supplied furniture and household goods to 400 formerly homeless families, including 101 tornado survivors, through our Household Essentials program;
- Worked with Springfield neighborhoods impacted by the tornado to develop rebuilding plans; and
- Helped 478 families affected by the tornado and provided more than $700,000 in direct financial assistance to 247 of them.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

Donations to HAPHousing are allocated to areas of greatest need. Recent donations have been used to help us prevent homelessness, re-house and stabilize homeless families, and deliver basic household essentials and supportive services to these families. Gifts of any size are welcome. Mail checks c/o JoAnne O'Neil at HAPHousing, 322 Main St., Springfield, or pay with your credit card through our secure online donations page at www.haphousing.org.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

HAPHousing relies on volunteers to assist with neighborhood-improvement projects and to help pick up, sort, and distribute gently used furniture and household goods for formerly homeless families through our Household Essentials program. Visit www.haphousing.org for a list of the household furnishings and goods we are in need of. Truck availability for deliveries is especially helpful.

MISSION STATEMENT

Striving to give each and every animal that comes through its doors a chance at a better future, the Thomas J. O'Connor Foundation lends a voice to animals who cannot speak for themselves. We support and enhance the programs and medical services at Thomas J. O'Connor Animal Control and Adoption Center through fund-raising, public awareness, and educational outreach.

UPCOMING EVENTS/PROGRAMS

Pawzaar: Dec. 8, 2012, noon-4 p.m., Thomas J. O'Connor Animal Control and Adoption Center, 627 Cottage St., Springfield.

WHO WE ARE AND WHAT WE DO

The Thomas J. O'Connor Foundation offers our community's most vulnerable animals the chance to live more hopeful lives. With help from the TJO Foundation, hundreds of sick and injured dogs, cats, and other small animals sheltered at the Thomas J. O'Connor Animal Control and Adoption Center have access to life-saving medical treatment and veterinary care. The TJO Foundation provides behavior training for dogs so they can become good canine citizens, increasing their chances for adoption, and funds enrichment supplies and activities that make shelter life less stressful. The TJO Foundation is unique in serving animals from Springfield, Holyoke, and Chicopee that have been rescued by animal control; among the 4,000 or more animals taken in by the Thomas J. O'Connor Animal Control and Adoption Center each year are the abandoned, mistreated, injured, and stray. The TJO Foundation is there to provide the TLC these animals need to heal, thrive, and transition to loving homes.

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

The TJO Foundation welcomes volunteers to assist with special events and other foundation activities like community outreach and education. The Thomas J. O'Connor Animal Control and Adoption Center offers opportunities for volunteers to work directly with animals in shelter through programs such as Paws in the Park, enrichment activities, and regular kennel maintenance. Volunteers receive free training, and regular hours are encouraged. Call (413) 355-9164 or e-mail info@tjofoundation.org

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

There are many ways to make meaningful gifts to the Thomas J. O'Connor Foundation. We are grateful for monetary donations large and small, and all donations are tax-deductible to the extent of the law. In-kind donations of items on our wish list are always appreciated (visit www.tjofoundation.org for up-to-date wish lists). Attendance at one of our events is always a fun way to give. Donations can be made online at www.tjofoundation.org, or by sending a check to the Thomas J. O'Connor Foundation, 627 Cottage St., Springfield, MA 01104. For more information, call Melinda Thomas, development director, at (413) 533-4817 or e-mail mthomas@tjofoundation.org. All donations directly benefit local animals sheltered at the Thomas J.
